Saratoga and Brighton Bonch To-day

-Coney Island Stakes Close Aug. 1. One week from to-day Banquet and Sir Walber will meet in their match race at two and a quarter miles over the track of the American Jockey Club at Jerome Park. Banquet is reselving his preparation at Saratoga and is hig-ger, speedier, and better fitted for a bruising ef-fort than ever before in his career. The same is true of stout little Sir Walter, and the conest on Monday should be the race of the year, particularly for the turfmen of the old school, who deplore the decadence of racing in these days of sprints and sprinters.

Opinions are about equally divided as to the outcome of the match. The fact that it is for a side bet of but $500 makes it quite as much of an uncertainty as though it were for $5,000, as both owners are proud of their horses and be-lieve that they are champions over a distance. If a man looked the country over for two stout, soft spots, he could not select two better repre-sentatives of the thoroughbred family than Sanquet and Sir Walter. The meeting at Jerome Park, beginning as it does with such a poten attraction as this match and following with a first-class programme arranged by Secretary Hugh D. McIntyre, must of necessity be a suc-Brighton Beach, as well as a number of things from Saratoga, will take part, and the talent will find plenty of work cut out for them

The meeting at Saratoga will undoubtedly b a success from a racing standpoint now that the horses have been rested up, and the entries should improve daily. The attendance has not se yet been up to the expectation of the management, and some fears were expressed the middle of last week as to the management getting out without losing money. The foreign books last year were a big source of revenue to the association, but this season they are tabooed by the Jockey Club, and unless more books go on this week than weighed in for the past six days the ring will not pay the purses, something every race track tries to ac-complish. It was said that a number of newcomers would get in line as soon as public form became established. All of the big bettors are at the Springs, and many of them complain that they cannot get their money on without taking prices that are ridiculous.

No wonder horses thrive at the Spa. The air and water cannot be surpassed. John Huggins, who has charge of Mr. Pierre Lorillard's horses, wanted a well near his stable in the pines back of the grand stand. The association sent a man around in the afternoon with a crowbar, eight or nine feet of iron pipe, and an ordinary eistern pump. The crowlar was punched into the ground to the depth of three or four feet and then withdrawn, while Huggins stood looking on wondering what the man would do next. Then the iron pipe was inserted and worked up and down until it was some six or seven feet in the ground. All of this occupied perhaps ten mintes. The pump was then attached, and a few vectors. The pump was then attached and a few vectors. The pump was then attached and a few vectors of the pines and the horses stand in the doors of the pines and the horses stand in the doors of their boxes and drink it in in deep draughts. Trainers say they notice an improvement in the appetite of their charges the moment they arrive at the Springs. When Dobbins went to Saratoga last year for two weeks, he was stale and had been beaten repeatedly at Monmouth Park. Two weeks among the pines put him in much trim that he was beaten only two heads for the Futurity and ran the winner, Domino, a stead head a few days later. For years it was the custom for Saratoga to furnish the winner for the Junior Champion Stakes at Monmouth, Klagfish, Proctor Knott, Protection, and other wo-year-olds getting their preparation for the tygraca at that point.

Noboly appeared to know anything about Red Iron, but Col. Barnes threw light upon the subject in this wise:

"You remember Elias Lawrence, the horse the Dwyers once owned? He was a fair performer only, and excelled over a distance of ground. He didn's do much in the stud, but sired a coli that was named Red Iron. In a deal Mr. J. B. Haggin made for some marce this coli Red Iron was included, and so found his way to california. There he was neglected, but mated with Lillle Wright got this colt Diggs. B. Juthanson was raised in the promised.

TROTTERS EARNING THEIR FEED Some of Ficetwood's Brigade Paying Their Way Gossip of the Road,

The shaded plazza of the club house at Fleetwood is noted among drivers on the road as being one of the coolest places about town. High up on the rocky hill where the picturesque old structure stands there is always a breeze when a breath of air is astir anywhere above the Harlem River, and horsemen who follow the time-honored fashion of speeding their steppers on Seventh avenue of a Sunday morning find the place a delightful retreat while the thermometers are taking a shy at the world's record. Notwithstanding the scorching heat of yesterday nearly all the regulars were at the track, from the veteran Isaac Woodruff, who was in the prime of life when Lady Suffolk made her record, down to M. J. Leonard, who says he hopes to live until one of Matthew Riley's horses wins a race in the Grand Circuit. While most of the Fleetwood trainers are doing little more nowadays than to keep their trotters on edge, there was something of a general work-out yesterday, and a number of notable performances occurred. Fred Noble surprised all the other local trainers and habitues of the track by sending the chestnut stallion Dudley Olcott a mile in 2:1736, which is about eight seconds faster than the big fellow's record and a good deal better than he has ever been. known to trot in a race when the money was on. John Turner brought out the son of Albert W. and Ceceila in 1892, giving him a record of 2:26)4 at Albany. Early last season the tip went around that Olcott was going to be one of the great trotters of the year, and Turner evidently thought highly of him, for he named

THE SORTHWESTERN REGATTA. Senior Races Bestded in Rough Water of Betrott.

DETROTT, July 29.-The annual regatta of the Northwestern Amateur Rowing Association came to a close yesterday. The events were all of the "senior" order. Quite a strong wind was blowing up the river, and the water was so rough that the singles event was made the last race on the programme. The water was in fair condition when this race was started.

The senior doubles was a pretty race from start to finish, the Argonauts winning from Toronto No. 1. In the second event for tandem cances, Gould and Noack of the Detroit Boat Club rather surprised cancists by beating the Canadiana easily. Grand Rapids should have won the senior pairs. They led all the way to the turning stake, but made a bad mess of turning. They made a game fight on the home stretch, however, but could not reach the Argo-stretch, however, but could not reach the Argonaut pair.

The senior fours was another great race. Detroit turned the stake only two strokes shead of the Torontos. It was a hot race home. Two hundred yards from the finish Detroit was leading by three-quarters of a length, when Wells of Toronto slipped his seat, and Toronto gave up hope, although they finished. In the senior singles Van Damme of the Naufilus Boat Club, Detroit, led to the turn. Instead of turning the stake boat nearest to him, he went for his own and lost his chance of winning.

The annual meeting of the association was held yesterday at the Bussell House, The resignation of the Passaic Boat Club was accepted. Commodore Catlin of Chicago was reslected Ptesident: W. A. Littlejohn, Vice-President; W. C. Jupp, Secretary and Treasurer, and Messrs, McQuewan, Stirling, and Hewitt were reflected members of the Executive Board. William A. Brady, Corbett's manager, expects to have a talk with Parson Davies. Peter Jackson's manager, either to-day or to-morrow, in reference to the proposed Corbett-Jackson mill. Brady believes that there will be no trouble in arranging matters if Davies and Jackson mean business. He says that if the Jacksonville Club of Florida offers a good-sized purse it will receive immediate attention. Brady is of the opinion that if Jackson fought in the South he would be accorded fair play and protection.

"The public want to see which is the better man," said Corbett's manager yesterday, "and they would not put any barrier in the way of the meeting. If Jackson tries any monkey business, however, we will completely ignore him and look elsewhere for a fight, Idon't think, though, that there will be any horse play in the matter if Jackson is as sincere as he professes to be."

Beston wants the hig match, and is going to make an effort to secure it. Brady has been informed by Frank Buckley of Boston that a syndicate in that city would give $20.000 for the mill, and guarantee to pull it off without the authorities interfering. Brady said he would give the offer serious consideration. Jackson was notified of the offer. business. He says that if the Jacksonville Club

Phoy Were Never Marked Out to Test the Speed of Such Tachts as the Vigilant and Britanain-The Last Four Races on That River Were Simply Drifts-The Cause of the Bettannia's Withdrawal at Bangor-Haff Says that It was a Thin Exense-The Time Britannia Beceives.

To THE EDITOR OF THE SUN-Sir: It is quite robable that the showing made by the Vigilant British waters was very discouraging to her American admirers, but if they fully under-stood the conditions under which she sailed they would still have some hope left. The courses on the Clyde are undoubtedly good enough for forty-six footers, but they were never made to test the speed of such boats as the Britannia and Vigilant. However, there would not be so much to complain of had the winds been at all steady. The last four races on the Clyde were nothing more than drifting matches. Whenever there was a good, solid breeze the Vigilant at once showed her superiority over the keel boat; but it is very certain that in very light airs the Britannia is the faster boat because the Vigilant cannot drift; she must have breeze when the Clyde races were over, all on board the Vigilant hoped that better luck awaited them in Irish waters, and when they awoke on the morning of July 16 and found a strong northwest wind blowing their spirits were above par. The course was a triangle, five and threequarters miles on each leg, and the yachts were compelled to sail three times around to complete the fifty miles. The Vigilant secured the weather berth at the start, as she had four times out of six when it was Haff versus Carter. It was a close reach to the first mark, and by the time that was reached the Britannia had forged through the Vigilant's lee far enough to turn the mark ahead; but she was passed by the Yankee flyer five minutes later, and for the first two rounds it was a procession, with the Vigilant all the while increasing her lead,

By the time the yachts were starting on the third round the Britannia was fully seven min-utes behind. Then both boats ran out of the wind and lay becalmed for fully thirty minutes the Englishman being all of a mile to leeward of the centreboard craft. Then again came the wonderful luck of the Britannia. A streak of wind went across our bows, and the black boat caught it and away she went, getting at once such a lead that we could not altogether over come it, though we cut it down considerably. It such a lead that we could not altogether overcome it, though we out it down considerably. It was thus that the Britannia won her seventh mug from the Vigilant.

The next day, July 17, the conditions of the weather were the same as on the day before, and again the Vigilant got the best of the start, being dead to windward of the black cutter. The centreboarder soon slipped by her, and the Britannia never got any closer to the Vigilant during the day. The wind gradually increased in force, so that it became a question whether or not topsalis were doing the yachts any good. On each leg of the course in beating, running, and reaching the Britannia was left astern, and at the end of the second round she was over six minutes behind. The English cutter had only proceeded a short distance on the third round when she came up in the wind, lowered away everything but her jib, and ran back to Bangor The Vigilant took in her topsali and finished the race under easy canvas. It was afterward learned that the pin in the threat halyard block of the Britannia had carried away, causing her to withdraw from the race. When there is a "throat lashing," however, on the jaws of the gaff to prevent them from coming down in case of accident to the threat halyards, the carrying away of a pin in the block looks like a thin excuse.

I have no doubt that as the season advances the Vigilant will give a better account of herself. In all the races her sails have been far from perfection, while those of the Britannia are without a fault. They remind one very much of the sails used by the Valkyrie in America. last fail. Salimaker Wilson of Wilson & Griffin is on the Vigilant, and is getting the sails in shape as fast as possible.

The alterations made in the spars of the Vigilant at Greenock last week were the cutting off of the topmast four feet, bowsprit three feet, and spinnaker boom four feet. This was done to reduce the head sail. thus making her steer better, and also to reduce the time allowance.

Manager Chasseaud's Latest Scheme. The New York Amateurs is the title under which a number of men prominent in athletic circles will, under the management of Al Chas-seaud, the old Manhattan Athletic Club director of sports, organize for occasional out-of-town games of baseball at the fushionable resorts. Their first game will be played on Thursday next as Hollywood, by invitation of Fred Hoey, and, judging from the names of the players presented by the New York team, Mr. Hoey's team, under the captainty of Isving Brokaw of Princeton College, will have to put up a stiff game to Respector. The Amatours will leave at abon on Thursday, remaining over night at Hollywood.

It is the desire of the team to play against clubs containing no paid players or professionals, that in a measure their relative strength can be tested. The team on Thursday will contain the following well-known amatuurs: Yates, Ford, De Garmendia, Buell. Tyng, Curry, Chasseaud, Priest, and Dederick.

No More Releases by the Breeklyn Club at

In speaking of Pitcher Castright's release to THE first reporter yesterday Capt. Fouts had this to say: "Gastright did not come up to our expectations. He only pitched one good game for us. Underwood seems to do well, and is not afraid of the League batamen." to do well, and is not afraid of the League batamen."
Capt. Fours also said that the club was contemplating no more releases.

The Sur-reporter learned setterday that Dailoy and Kinslow had an interview with President Byrns on Saturday night, and that everything relating to the trouble in the West was, so far as the club is concerned, satisfactority adjusted. Dailoy and Kinslow will remain on the team unjess something unforeseen turns up. Both men were fixed.

SHALED HANDICAPPING IN USE. The Williamsburgh A. A. Tries the English System and It Is Liked.

A new departure was made by Capt. Murray and Lieut. Greaves in the point competitions among the members of the Williamsburgh A. A. yesterday morning on the Bushwick grounds. In the field events a system of scaled handicapping, an English style, was used. It consists of starring all the men evenly, and then letting them finish as well as they can. The results are an-nounced after the handleaps are figured out from the events decided. It worked so well yesterday that Harry Kuehne broke the hammerthrowing record of the association.

The race of the day was the quarter of & mile run, in which Kuehne allowed Sam Walters 13 yards. The latter won by by two feet in the fastest time ever made on the grounds. Sum-mariest time ever made on the grounds. Summaries:
